

BUILD UP AFTER GRIP
WITH
Dr. Greene's NERVURA
BLOOD AND NERVE REMEDY

GRIP is more deadly than smallpox. The actual statistics of death from Grip this Winter would startle every one.

But statistics do not account for the thousands and thousands who escaped fatal result, but are left permanently weakened and exhausted.

DR. GREENE'S NERVURA blood and nerve remedy builds up weakened forces and drives the Grip germ out of the blood.

William Henry Gray, M.D., N. Y., says:—
"I was in very bad shape, brought there as the result of Grip, and for six weeks was in bed all the time. I continued along in a very feeble condition and getting small benefit, until I began the use of Dr. Greene's NERVURA blood and nerve remedy and before I had taken the first bottle I could see benefit. I continued its use for several bottles, when I was so much improved that I discontinued it. I am now better and weigh more than I have for years, which I attribute to Dr. Greene's NERVURA. I do most cheerfully and cordially recommend the NERVURA to any and all who may read this."

Grip sufferers are invited to write Dr. Greene for special advice, or call at his office, 35 W. 14th St., New York City. No charge whatever is made for consultation either by call or by letter.

NEWS OF ONE DEATH
FOLLOWS THE OTHER.

Mrs. Hunter Hears of Father's Demise While Going to Attend Brother's Funeral.

BOTH STRICKEN AT RECEPTION.

Young Man First Succumbs—Elder Schmidt Was a Railroad Division Superintendent at Sparta, Ill.

While en route to Sparta, Ill., whither she was called by a telegram announcing the death by poison of her younger brother, Mrs. William Hunter of New York received news that her father, H. W. Schmidt, division superintendent of the Illinois and Southern Railroad, had met a similar fate. The last bad news coming so close upon the heels of the first message was broken to Mrs. Hunter at Union Station by members of her family, who had journeyed from Sparta for that purpose. Mrs. Hunter was immediately overwhelmed with grief, and her lamentations attracted the station attendants, who took her to Matron Hunter's room. Assistant Matron Sullivan attempted to comfort her; medical assistance was summoned, but she could not be calmed. Over and over again she kept moaning: "My heart is broken; my heart is broken." The spectacle of her grief was so affecting that even the strangers who were endeavoring to assist her were moved almost to tears.

H. W. Schmidt was well known in local railroad circles as well as in Southern Illinois. He was the father of five children, and the family is among the most prominent in Sparta.

Friday night a small reception was given at the Schmidt home at Sparta and refreshments were served. Saturday morning, Harry Schmidt, 30 years old, became very ill. His tongue became swollen so that respiration was not possible, and he died Saturday night. His sudden end plunged the family into mourning, and a telegram was dispatched to Mrs. Hunter, who immediately started for Sparta.

On Sunday, Mr. Schmidt became ill. It was thought that his sickness was due to his son's death, but he shortly exhibited symptoms of poison. His tongue and throat became inflamed, his limbs paralyzed and swollen. Though physicians worked with him all Sunday night, he died early yesterday morning.

It is said that their deaths were due to the effects of ptomaines in the food of which they had partaken at the reception. It was known that Mrs. Hunter, who was accompanied by her husband, would reach St. Louis yesterday afternoon. According to the mother of Mrs. Schmidt and grandmother of Mrs. Hunter started from Sparta to break the news of Mr. Schmidt's death.

Mrs. Hunter was helped aboard the M. & O. train, which leaves Union Station at 5:30 P. M., and under the nursing of her husband and her grandmother, departed for Sparta. Her condition was such that it was thought her life was in danger.

Six Young Illinois Men Face Serious Charge.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.
Lebanon, Ill., Feb. 11.—Isaac and Ben Carter, Eugene Ring, Cleveland Giamble, James Finton and Louis Carter of Boulder, east of here, have been arrested charged with the commission of a diabolical crime.

It is alleged that a short time ago Isaac Carter drove up to the residence of William Fritchett, a farmer living near Boulder, and persuaded Miss Lucie Fritchett, his daughter, to accompany him to a place some four miles distant. Instead of driving to the church, he drove to a secluded place in the woods. When there, he charged that, by previous arrangement, his confederates were in hiding. Miss Fritchett was overpowered, and as soon as the matter became known, warrants were sworn out against the young men charging them with the offense and were arrested. Isaac Carter's preliminary trial occurred before Justice Hogan of Carlinville, and he was bound over to the grand jury to accompany him to the grand jury. The preliminary examination of his confederates will occur on the 18th.

ASK THAT WAREHOUSE BILL BE AMENDED.
ONE FIRM MAY DO ALL THE SPRINKLING

Many St. Louis Merchants Want Custodian of Imported Goods to Be Liable for Losses.

Charles H. Wyman, who represents many of the local importers who are opposed to the erection of a bonded warehouse at this port by the United States for the reason that the Government is not responsible for losses or damage to goods stored in bond, said yesterday that on January 12 he had forwarded a petition signed by the principal importers of St. Louis who are bonded warehousemen, asking that Congress amend Barthold's bill, providing for the erection of a bonded warehouse here by the Government, be amended before passage.

"A very large majority of those merchants who need a bonded warehouse," said he, "signed the petition, and as the Business Men's League has actively espoused the contrary idea, I deem it just to explain the position of those opposed to Mr. Barthold's bill in its present condition. The Government is not in the warehouse business. In its dealings with importers it requires two warehouses—one where goods may be examined for appraisement and one where unclaimed goods may be deposited pending entry by the owner."

"At this point these two houses are combined at Third and Olive streets. The premises are large and the Government permits importers to keep their foreign goods there in storage. This accommodation is extended only so long as space is available, and while fees are paid for it, under the law the Government is exempt from responsibility as to the care of goods thus stored. Many losses have occurred and in every instance the Government has refused to reimburse the merchant. If a new warehouse is to be built the merchants desire the stewardship of the Government in such a warehouse shall be subject to the laws of the State of Missouri, and that when goods are damaged or stolen that they be paid for just as if the warehouse were owned by an individual."

"Mr. Barthold's bill simply enlarges the present practice, and does not give the importer practical protection. The merchants want the bonded-warehouse facilities enlarged by other big cities, and here are several parties ready to build them with such facilities. The local customs officers, however, are so tenacious of the perquisites of patronage afforded by the present system that operation by individuals is rendered impracticable."

HENRY CLAY CREVELING DEAD.
One of the Organizers of the St. Louis Transfer Company.

Henry Clay Creveling, for many years prominently connected with the transportation interests of St. Louis and the West, and for years past a resident of this city, died yesterday morning at his home, No. 142 Locust street. The funeral will take place from the family residence to-morrow at 9:30. The burial will be private.

Henry Clay Creveling was born in Bloomsbury, N. J., in 1822. He spent his boyhood there, and when 21 years old went to Cincinnati, O. He obtained a position as fourth engineer on the steamboat General Pike, then in the trade between Cincinnati and New Orleans. After three years on the river, he returned to Bloomsbury, N. J., and married Miss Margaret De Witt Maginney. On his return to Cincinnati, he found that his former employer, Captain Jacob Stader, the well-known steamboat man of that day, had acquired an interest in the Little Miami Railroad. Mr. Creveling accepted a position as conductor, and in a few years was made trainmaster. Later he became superintendent of the Mobile and Ohio Railway. This appointment made it necessary for Mr. Creveling to live in St. Louis, and he remained here until his death.

He was in company with a number of railroad men and others, organized the St. Louis Transfer Company, and for thirteen years had charge of its management. In 1899 he was elected a member of the Wisconsin Ferry Company, and he established a car-transfer service between the railroads on both sides of the Mississippi River. It was at this time, also, that the Creveling and several transfer barges were built. Mr. Creveling retired from business in 1892 and devoted his time to travel. His wife died in 1888. Four of his children survive. Mr. Creveling. They are Mrs. Ernest Taquary of Paris, France; Mrs. E. V. Walsh of St. Louis; and Clem Creveling, who is well known in racing circles.

MYSTERY NOT YET SOLVED.
Manner of Mrs. De Mars's Death Remains Unexplained.

Mrs. Bertha De Mars, who was found lying unconscious Sunday morning in the rear of No. 1500 Olive street, and who was found to have a fractured skull, died at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the City Hospital. The manner in which she received her injuries is still unexplained. The woman's husband, Paul De Mars, is under arrest in connection with the death, and nothing has been produced to show that he was implicated, and he positively asserts that he knows nothing of the cause of his wife's injury.

Mrs. De Mars was found at the foot of a flight of stairs by Mrs. Florence Lawrence, a negroes. Mrs. Lawrence heard sounds of a fall a few minutes before she found Mrs. De Mars. The husband was asleep when arrested. He declared that both he and his wife had been drinking Saturday night, and believed that she fell down the stairs.

MRS. MAYBRICK NOT PARDONED
American Woman Still Serving Sentence for Killing Husband.

London, Feb. 11.—The officials of the Home Office say there is no foundation whatever for the report that Mrs. Florence Maybrick had been pardoned. An official of the United States Embassy said to a representative of the Associated Press: "It did not need the Home Office denial to prove the absolute baselessness of the Maybrick story. We would be the first to be notified of any such action. Not a single fact has arisen to give the slightest justification for the story or to make the release of Mrs. Maybrick more probable than heretofore."
